To help residents impacted the most by Superstorm Sandy the New Jersey Department of Health has developed a resource guide to help those who may need information regarding their health as this rebuilding process continues.

The information contained in this guide includes a wide range of information. You can easily access key phone numbers and contact information for health and service agencies in the counties most impacted by the storm.

Information is listed in county-by-county form, listing each of health care resources – including hospitals, WIC programs, Federally Qualified Health Centers and health agencies.

In addition, we have provided information sheets from the New Jersey Department of Health. These materials will be helpful for individuals who are moving back into their homes following the storm.

They include important information on food safety, safe drinking water, carbon monoxide dangers and mental health services.

For more information, visit the New Jersey DOH website at www.nj.gov/health. Just click the icon “Hurricane Resources” for a full range of information.

The New Jersey Department of Health is committed to helping our residents recover from Superstorm Sandy and will continue to provide our assistance and expertise wherever it is needed.

After a flood, what the public should know about...

Cleaning/Mold removal

Is it safe to cook in my kitchen after flooding?

Yes, but precautions must be taken to protect food contact surfaces from contaminating your food. When cleaning or disinfecting, wear protective clothing, such as gloves, to avoid skin contact, irritation, or infection.

- Discard wooden cutting boards, wooden dishes and utensils, plastic utensils, baby bottle nipples, and pacifiers that have come into contact with flood water. These items cannot be safely cleaned.
- Thoroughly wash countertops with soap and water, using hot water if available. Rinse, and then sanitize with a solution of 1 tablespoon of unscented, liquid chlorine bleach per gallon of drinking water (or the cleanest, clearest water available). Allow to air dry.
- Make sure to clean corners, cracks and crevices, door handles, and door seals, in rooms that have been affected by flood water.

How should I clean my pots, pans, dishes and utensils?

Thoroughly wash metal pans, ceramic dishes and utensils (including can openers) with hot soap and water. Rinse and then sanitize them by boiling in clean water or immersing them for 15 minutes in a diluted bleach solution (1 tablespoon of unscented, liquid chlorine bleach per 1 gallon of drinking water). Allow to air dry.

How should I clean my countertops?

Wash countertops with soap and water, using hot water if possible. Rinse and then sanitize with a diluted bleach solution (1 tablespoon of unscented, liquid chlorine bleach per 1 gallon of drinking water). Allow to air dry.

What is the best way to clean sheetrock/plaster walls/crawlspace after a flood?

Remove all water soaked sheetrock and insulation between wall joists to allow the wall cavity areas to dry. For plaster walls, openings can be made in the top and bottom of the walls to allow water to drain and air to circulate. If power is available, use fans to circulate the air and dehumidifiers to assist. Hiring a professional drying service may be necessary. Crawlspace beneath the building may be difficult to clean and dry out. Bacterial growth can be a significant concern in these areas. Crawlspace are often small spaces to work and could be considered a confined space. Without proper ventilation and safety precautions do not enter these areas. Seek professional assistance to evaluate and clean these areas.

How do I clean ventilation systems after flooding?

Cleaning the ventilation system ductwork may be necessary to remove debris caused by flooding. The system should be inspected prior to using. Bacteria can be spread by the HVAC system so disinfection may be necessary. Not all disinfectants are appropriate for use in cleaning the ventilation system. Make sure the products being used are approved for use in the ventilation system before using them. Professional assistance may be needed for proper cleaning of the system.

How do I find out if I have mold?

Identifying mold in your home should always begin with a thorough visual inspection. An inspection can be done by a homeowner or by a qualified environmental consultant. Please note that there are no state or federal regulations which cover mold inspections. The inspection may be focused on specific areas where moisture has been seen, where flooding or water damage has occurred or in common areas known for mold growth such as basements, attics and crawl spaces. Stained or discolored areas of walls and ceilings that continue to increase in size or change colors can be signs of mold growth. A strong musty smell is also an indicator of mold growth.

Should my home be tested for mold?

If a visual inspection shows the presence of mold, additional testing is not necessary. The focus should be on correcting any moisture problems and cleaning up the mold contamination. However, if mold is not found during a visual inspection and is still suspected of being present, additional testing may be necessary. Testing for mold should always be performed by a qualified person. Your Local Health Department may be able to assist or an environmental consultant who specializes in or has experience in evaluating mold contamination should be contacted.

What additional environmental testing do I need/should I consider?

Additional testing may include an evaluation of the relative humidity in the home and taking moisture readings of building materials in suspected areas. Swab testing of suspected surfaces and bulk samples of building materials may also be performed. Specialized air testing is also an option for identifying mold spores (MVOCs) from mold growth. However, these specialized air tests can be very expensive and need to be conducted in context with an overall assessment plan. Caution should be taken when considering air testing since there are no state or federal standards for determining an acceptable level of mold in the air. Careful interpretation of air sampling results is also very important since individual susceptibility and health status varies. If air sampling is conducted, an outside reference sample should also be collected at the same time for comparison with the indoor samples.

Who should I hire to test my home for mold?

There are no state or federal regulations which cover mold inspections. Environmental consultants are not required to obtain a license or certification to conduct mold inspections. Homeowners should make sure that any consultant performing work has received proper training and are familiar with current industry standards for performing inspections.

How should I discard moldy items?

Use gloves or other personal protection when cleaning items. People with asthma and allergies should not remove mold. Exposure to mold may cause these people to become sick. Clean all hard surfaces with a bleach and water solution (1 cup bleach to 1 gallon of water) to kill germs and mold. Wash hands after touching anything that has touched flood water. Wash all clothing worn during clean-up in hot water separate from the laundering of routine clothing.

What can I do to prevent mold in my home?

To prevent mold, wash surface areas in your home, including the walls, staircases and items that came in contact with floodwater. Disinfect with bleach solution and wipe surfaces dry with paper towels to minimize bacterial contamination.

My home was flooded. How do I know what household items can be saved and what I should throw away?

Take things that were wet for 2 or more days outside. Things that stayed wet for 2 days have mold growing on them even if you can't see it.

- Take out items made of cloth, unless you can wash them in hot water.
- Also throw away items that can't be cleaned easily (like leather, paper, wood, mattresses, and carpet).
- Throw away any items that do not dry completely because they can harbor germs and produce mold, which can irritate allergies as well as lead to respiratory or other illnesses.
- Keep the humidity and temperature as low as possible.
- Remove any moldy objects as soon as possible. Wash hands after touching anything that has touched flood water.
- Use bleach to clean mold off hard things (like floors, stoves, sinks, certain toys, countertops, flatware, plates, and tools).

What is the best way to clean up after a flood?

Follow these tips to clean up after a flood:

- Never mix bleach with ammonia or other cleaners.
- Wear rubber boots, rubber gloves, goggles, and N-95 mask.
- Open windows and doors to get fresh air when you use bleach.
- Mix no more than 1 cup of bleach in 1 gallon of water.
- Wash the item with the bleach and water mixture.
- If the surface of the item is rough, scrub the surface with a stiff brush.
- Rinse the item with clean water.
- Dry the item or leave it out to dry.

After a flood, what the public should know about...

Drinking water

How do I know whether my house is served by a water system that has issued a boil water advisory?

Officials will inform the public by TV, radio, and newspaper. Some water systems or local governments may use reverse-911 to alert residents by phone. Some water systems or towns may also post information on their website or deploy vehicles with loudspeakers.

What should I do if a boil water advisory has been issued?

If a boil water advisory has been issued, the water coming into your house (tap water), may be unsafe to drink. Heat and hold the water at a rolling boil for 1 minute. Then let it cool. Water can be stored in the refrigerator if there is electricity. Drinking and cooking with boiled water is safe for humans and pets.

Ice cubes prepared before the start of the boil water advisory can be used. Ice cubes made afterward must be thrown away. Dishwashing machines can be used if the final rinse is 113° F for 20 minutes, 122 ° F for 5 minutes or 160° F for 1 minute. Check the dishwasher manual for details on heat cycles.

What should I do if a boil water advisory has been issued?

If a boil water advisory has been issued, the tap water coming into your house, the tap water, may be unsafe to drink. Heat and hold the water at a rolling boil for 1 minute, then let it cool. Drink and cook with boiled or bottled water. Drinking and cooking with boiled water is safe for humans and pets.

It is OK to bathe in tap water?

It's safe to bathe in tap water. Children and the disabled should be supervised. Everyone should avoid getting tap water in their mouth or eyes. It is recommended to use boiled water to brush your teeth.

How will I know that it is safe to drink tap water?

Officials will inform the public when the tap water is safe to drink. Local officials will test the water to know for certain when it is safe to drink. Continue to use boiled water until the tests show the tap water is safe. When the advisory is lifted, flush your water taps for 2-3 minutes. Empty and clean your automatic ice makers and water chillers. Drain and refill your hot water heater if set at a low temperature (below 113°F).

My home was flooded and I am worried about the safety of the drinking water. What should I do?

Use bottled water that has not been exposed to flood water, if available. If you don't have bottled water, you should boil tap water to make sure it is safe. Boiling water will kill most types of disease causing germs. Bring the tap water to a rolling boil for one minute. Let it cool and store it in clean containers with covers/lids. If the water is cloudy, filter it through a clean cloth or allow it to settle and use the clear water from the top of the container.

I don't have any electric/power and can't boil water. Any other suggestions?

Use bottled water, if possible. If you can't boil water, you can disinfect it using household bleach. Bleach will kill some, but not all, types of disease-causing organisms that may be in the water. If the water is cloudy, filter it through clean cloths or allow it to settle, and use the clear water from the top of the container. Add 1/8 teaspoon (or 8 drops) of regular, unscented, liquid household bleach per each gallon of water. Stir it well and let it stand for at least 30 minutes before you use it. Store disinfected water in clean containers with covers/lids.

Should I be concerned about the safety of my water?

Hurricanes and flooding can contaminate the public water supply. Water may not be safe to drink. Pay attention to the radio, TV, or other news outlets for information on your local water supply. Announcements should give you updated information and let you know if you need to boil your water to make it safe to drink. Otherwise, use bottled water until your tap water is safe to use and drink.

I have a well. Is it safe to drink the water?

If you have a private well and it was covered by flood water, flush the well until the water is clear and free of sediment, then test the well for bacteria; do not drink the water until it's been tested. It is best to sample the water before it reaches the water storage tank. If bacteria are found, the well must be disinfected. You can disinfect using unscented bleach. The well should be inspected during the disinfection. Directions may be found at: <http://www.ni.gov/dep/watersupplv/disinfectionofprivatewells.pdf>

How do I flush a well?

To flush a well: Attach a hose to an outside spigot. Open the spigot. Let the water run until it is clear and free of dirt and sediment.

Can I use a home water filter if I don't have bottled water or in place of boiling water?

Most home water filters do not provide adequate protection when a boil water advisory is issued. Activated carbon filters do not remove microorganisms. At this time, there is no boil water advisory.

What steps should I take to make sure my tap water is safe after a boil water advisory is lifted?

There are steps you can take after a boil water advisory has been lifted to make sure that your tap water is safe. Run your water faucets for 2- 3 minutes. Empty and clean your automatic ice makers and water chillers. Drain and refill your hot water heater if set at a low temperature (below 113°F). And if you have a water softener, run it through a regeneration cycle.

Bleach dilution

How do you make a diluted bleach solution?

This depends how you will use the mixture/solution. See the chart below.

Use	Bleach (unscented liquid chlorine)	Water
To drink	1/8 teaspoon or 8 drops	1 gallon
To rinse plates/dishes	1 tablespoon	1 gallon
To clean hard household surfaces (countertops, food cans, toys, flatware, tools, etc.)	1 cup	1 gallon
To kill mold	1 cup	1 gallon
To clean pool surfaces	1 cup	5 gallons

After a flood, what the public should know about...

Food Safety

Flood waters covered our food stored on shelves and in cabinets. What can I keep and what should I throw out?

Do not eat any food that may have come into contact with flood water. Discard any food that is not in a waterproof container. Food containers that are not waterproof include those with screw-caps, snap lids, pull tops and crimped caps. Also, throw out cardboard juice/milk/baby formula boxes and home canned foods if they have come in contact with flood water, because they cannot be cleaned and/or sanitized.

How do I know whether to throw away canned foods that were exposed to flood water? Inspect canned foods and discard any food in damaged cans. Can damage is shown by swelling, leakage, punctures, holes, fractures, extensive deep rusting, or crushing/denting severe enough to prevent normal stacking or opening with a manual, wheel-type can opener.

Can I eat the food that was in cans or sealed pouches?

Undamaged, commercially prepared foods in all-metal cans and "retort pouches" (such as flexible, shelf-stable juice or seafood pouches) can be saved by following these instructions:

- Remove the labels, if they are the removable kind, since they can harbor dirt and bacteria.
- Brush or wipe away any dirt or silt.
- Thoroughly wash the cans or retort pouches with soap and water, using hot water if it is available. Rinse the cans or retort pouches with water that is safe for drinking, if available, since dirt or residual soap will reduce the effectiveness of chlorine sanitation.
- Sanitize cans and retort pouches by immersion in one of the two following ways:
  - Place in water and allow the water to come to a boil and continue boiling for 2 minutes, or
  - Place in a freshly-made solution consisting of 1 tablespoon of unscented liquid chlorine bleach per gallon of drinking water (or the cleanest, clearest water available) for 15 minutes.
- Air dry cans or retort pouches for a minimum of 1 hour before opening or storing.
- If the labels were removable, then re-label your cans or retort pouches, including the expiration date (if available), with a marking pen.
- Food in reconditioned cans or retort pouches should be used as soon as possible.
- Any concentrated baby formula in reconditioned, all-metal containers must be diluted with clean, drinking water.

May I refreeze the food in the freezer if it thawed or partially thawed?

Some food may be safely refrozen if the food still contains ice crystals or at 40°F or below. Throw out items in the freezer or refrigerator that have come into contact with raw meat juices.

Some of the food in the freezer started to thaw or had thawed when the power came back on. Is the food safe?

You will have to evaluate each item separately. Never taste food to determine its safety! Refrigerated food should be safe as long as the power was out for no more than 4 hours and the refrigerator door was kept shut.

- Check the thermometer in the back of your refrigerator or freezer.
- If the appliance thermometer stored in the freezer reads 40 °F or below, the food is safe and may be refrozen. If a thermometer has not been kept in the freezer, check each package of food to determine the safety.
- You cannot rely on appearance or odor.
- If the food has ice crystals or is 40 °F or below, it is safe to refreeze it.
- Throw out perishable food such as meat, poultry, fish/seafood, milk, eggs and leftovers that have been above 40 °F for 2 hours.

I can't afford to throw out all of the food that was in my refrigerator/freezer. Can I really get sick if I eat the food?

If you plan to eat refrigerated or frozen meat, poultry, fish or eggs while it is still at safe temperatures, it's important that each item is thoroughly cooked to the proper temperature to assure that any foodborne bacteria that may be present is destroyed. However, if at any point the food was above 40 °F for 2 hours or more it should be thrown away.

How long can my refrigerator/freezer keep food safe when the power is off?

Keep the refrigerator and freezer doors closed as much as possible to maintain the cold temperature. The refrigerator will keep food cold for about 4 hours if it is unopened. A full freezer will keep the temperature for approximately 48 hours (24 hours if it is half full) if the door remains closed. Buy dry or block ice to keep the refrigerator as cold as possible if the power is going to be out for a prolonged period of time. Fifty pounds of dry ice should hold an 18-cubic foot fully-stocked freezer cold for two days.
